ADVANCED BEGINNER (2.0): Has taken at least one series of beginner lessons and needs on-court experience. Has incomplete swing, lacks directional intent, avoids backhand and net play, lacks footwork, and has grip problems. Familiar with basic singles & doubles positions.

LOW INTERMEDIATE (2.5): Weak court coverage but can sustain a short rally of slow pace, Has grip and preparation problems. Chooses forehand instead of backhand. Uncomfortable at net, particularly on backhand side. Attempting full swing on serve; lobs lack control.

INTERMEDIATE (3.0): Fairly consistent with some directional intent on medium-paced shots; lacks execution when trying for placement, depth, or power. Consistent forehand volley but generally weak net play. Serve lacks consistent power; lobs moderate shots consistently.

ADV INTERMED (3.5): Improved court coverage, stroke dependability, and directional control on moderate shots. Developing spin on FH but lacks depth and variety of groundstrokes. Serves with control and some power and can place second serve returns. More aggressive net play with proper footwork but has trouble putting volleys away. Consistent overhead. Some specialty shots (half-, drop-volley, approach, etc).

ADVANCED (4.0): Dependable strokes with directional control and depth. Still not playing percentage tennis; often loses rallies due to impatience. Places both first & second serves with power or spin. Uses offensive and defensive lobs, approach shots, and volleys effectively.
